POLICE MATTERS.

Washington Theatre.—This morning the touchy domestic drama of "all that Glitters is not Gold," and the drama of "Robert Macaire" will be presented. On Monday evening Mr. F. C. Chapman will appear in a little farce.

Grover's Opera.—Last night, W. L. Davenport, the evergreen Mr. Davenport, will appear as "Richelieu," the ill-fated great historical play of that name. The performance will conclude with "Wanted, 1,000 Millions," and "Madame Vanderpant." The former on Monday.

Nixon's CHAMOISEE GARDEN Circus.—The Temple de Art is now completed, and the extensive series of performances, which began at the Army of New York, is prepared to receive visitors at his new circus, Washington.

Barnum's MUSEUM AND CIRCUS.—This extensive and very attractive establishment is thronged nightly with delighted audiences, as are also the two o'clock matinees.

Visit it, by all means.

Olympic Music Hall—Lata Gomazine.—Mis. Fanny Forrest, the "Queen of Song," and Bob Butler, the pianist, assisted by the other members of the Olympic company, will appear this evening.

Cannanau.—To-night will be the last appearance positively of Miss Marcella Revel, Miss Nellie Taylor, and Miss George R. De Louis. There will be a grand review to-morrow. Don't fail to see the girls this night.

A Large sum of Counterfeit Money.—About three weeks since, the house of Isaac Strasburger, situated at No. 13 Third street, Georgetown, was entered and searched by some of the police, who took away a large amount of ascertaining if he had in his possession counterfeit money, information having been furnished them to that effect; but after a most diligent search they were unable to find any. The detective corps, under Superintendent W. H. McCall, have been unable to find the person who was not right in that quarter, on Wednesday last went to the above premises and succeeded in obtaining about one thousand dollars of the "guilder" which they found secreted in a box. It is now known when the officers will return with the warrant to search his back door with the money and a large pair of iron knuckles in his hand, by some soldiers of company E, One Hundred Thirty-fifth Pennsylvania volunteers, who are stationed in the rear of his house and so, in their next search some of the soldiers said that they would go and see if he had not left it there; and after a diligent search, they succeeded in finding it, but kept very quiet about it until the officers arrived and took it from them. Strasburger being in Virginia, the following day, he was arrested on suspicion as a pedlar among the troops, he could not be arrested, but the next day, about 12 o'clock, the officers succeeded in arresting him, and he was taken before Justice Clark in this city, and gave bail for a further examination, which took place yesterday. Three of the soldiers who were present in the case bearing the soldiers who saw him enter the back yard with the money in his hand, and who afterwards found the money themselves, and who also stated in their testimony that he had been heard to say in testifying that he had been paid $100 for the same, been seen on several occasions with a lot of this kind of money in his possession. Still the judge discharged him, and so he is allowed to go on in his infamous course and swindle the public out of their money, and sell them a mass of trash, charge them an exorbitant price, and give them in exchange for their good money his worthless stuff.

Sorcerous to General Prentiss.

A large crowd of citizens assembled at Willard's Hotel last night to participate in a demonstration in honor of this gallant general, who has been patiently suffering for months in a Sorcery.

After music by the band, General Francis was appropriately introduced to the vast audience. He proceeded in a plain, forcible, and touching manner to narrate the incidents in his eventful life, in an eloquent, pantomiming, graphic language, the sufferings of which, with his brave companions, described the horrible condition of Alabama prisons, the murdering of Union soldiers, gave instances of the loyalty of women in the South, told of the nakedness and destitution of the captive soldiers as prisoners, said that 200 of them had been captured, and he was no longer ashamed to be called "a gro sympathizer" "abolitionist" or anything else but "rebel sympathizers."

He also described the condition of the country, the terrible privations, the want of food, and the suppression of every independent thought. He declared the white race of the South much more of a slave to-day than the negro ever was. He believed the rebel army to be now partially demoralized, and considered it safe to advance our arms.

We whipped them at the battle of Antietam more than we imagined.

In regard to the proclamation of emancipation, General P. said those rebel officers with whom he conversed called it the most dangerous of all war, and that it was the ruin of the Government; that it would certainly be the ruin of the United States. In short, it was a terrible annoyance and source of alarm to the South. It was his firm conviction that President Lincoln's proclamation of emancipation is doing more to end this rebellion than all the battles we have fought and the victories we have won in the field.

The speech of General P. was listened to with marked attention, and vociferously applauded throughout, and, at its close, three rousing cheers were given for "the fighting men of the West."

Loud calls were made for Colonel Mulligan, who, in response, came forward and, in a eloquent speech, counselled unity of action and implicit confidence in the Administration and the generals in command.

Troops Arrived.—The 143d New York regiment, Colonel D. P. De Witt, numbering 862 men, arrived in this city last Wednesday night.

With the arrival of the regiment arrived last Thursday night from Baltimore, where they have been encamped for two weeks past. This regiment numbers 956 men. The following are the principal officers:

Col. W. H. Noble, Lieut. Col. Walter Major, Brady, Adjutant Wilkinson, and Surgeon Hub.

The 10th Massachusetts battery, numbering 150 men, under command of Capt. J. H. Slesper, arrived yesterday morning.

The following recruits have also arrived 33 for the 1st New York, 10 for the 1st New York battery, 64 for the 1st Mass. cavalry, 34 for the 5th Cavalier, 13 for 2nd New York, 17 for the 2d Rhode Island.

Arrest of a Fugitive from Justice.—At an early hour yesterday morning police, at the head of the southern division, proceeded to the northwestern section of the city and arrested a young man named Edward Sherry charged with being a fugitive from justice from Washington, D. C. He is there charged with robbing a bank in that city, and was sentenced to prison for 18 months for the robbery of $80. He was locked up in the southern district police station until a requisition arrives from Washington for the proper authorities.—Bell, Sun, 17th.

The Megantic Bank.—It is calling in all redeeming bills of issue to prevent the loss of another 200,000 dollars.
